Empowered to Connect:

Caring for Kids, Inc. is honored and excited to be hosting the two-day Empowered to Connect Conference live Simulcast, in collaboration with Show Hope Ministries and the TCU Child Development Center!

The Empowered to Connect Conference is a fabulous resource for a parent of any child and is an ideal and proven parenting technique for past, current or future adoptive and foster parents that promotes emotional healing in children from hard places. Agencies and individuals serving and supporting these families, including social workers, therapists, counselors, church staff, Guardian Ad Litem/CASA's, judges, teachers and more are not only welcomed, but encouraged, to attend.

The concepts presented during the Empowered to Connect Conference are based on the Trust Based Relational Intervention (TBRI) method and are not only for foster and adoptive parents, but for anyone who parents a child coming from a hard place. As defined by Dr. Karyn Purvis, children who are facing challenges or have been subjected to trauma of any form will benefit from this conference. This can include anything from high risk or high stress pregnancies or births, time in the NICU, and childhood illnesses, to a traumatic event such as divorce, exposure to violence, learning disabilities, insecurities, emotional disturbances and more.

We hope you can join us!
